| Program Description: | |
| Chutzpah and Panache: The “Me” in Empowerment. What does it mean? How will know when we have it? Where does it come from? The morning workshop will discuss empowerment and how to measure it. The Pennsylvania Families Inc. Venue Network will be introduced as a statewide resource for families whose children are using services. The afternoon session will review Natural Community Resources, a critical element in the lives of families and youth who have serious emotional disturbances or behavioral health issues. A panel of family members from Pennsylvania Families Inc. will share their experiences and engage the audiences in reframing non-therapeutic community activities into valuable experiences that help a child/youth create a satisfying life. | |
| Educational Objectives: | |
| At the conclusion of this program participants should be able to: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Define empowerment as a process. 2. Document the level of empowerment in the creation of service plans. 3. Apply the concept of empowerment in terms of the principles of family driven care. 4. Recognize effective resources that are available in most counties. 5. Identify the value of natural community resources. 6. Summarize the therapeutic outcomes that come from non-therapeutic resources and discuss the outcomes that were achieved. | |
